The End of an Era

Last call, Crossroads closes its doors for now.

Most of the time, whether you have had the best of times and the worst of times at that little hole-in-the-wall landmark called "The Crossroads." For the past 20 or so years Crossroads has served as a social center for many college students, a consistent source of business for the Nacogdoches Police Department and, some would maintain, SFA's best recruiting secret weapon.

Whether you went to oldies night, ladies night or danced on top of the tables in the beer garden to one of Five's a Crowd's legendary Happy Hour jam sessions, you could always count on going to Roads to forget the stress of the outside world.

Over the past two decades, the ancient but sturdy wooden stage has seen scores of bands entertain club patrons. Among the more memorable acts to bathe in the limelight at Crossroads were Deep Blue Something, The Toadies and Tripping Daisy. In fact, legend has had Texas guitar greats Stevie Ray Vaughn and Eric Johnson on the stage at some point or another. Whether you came for the music, the atmosphere or simply to forget about class for a while, at Roads, there was always reason to drink, dance and be merry.

It is one of those places that there is nothing special about, and at the same time is home for a million vivid memories, whether it be the larger-than-life rendering of Jimi Hendrix burning his Stratocaster on the wall, the infamous wall decor in the men's room or that mysterious black substance which always seems to find its way onto your shoes and pant legs. "Club funk" some call it.

Whatever the appeal, Crossroads has served as a social magnet, attracting all those who have sought refuge from worry and responsibility. The legend of Roads, which is older than some SFA students, seemed to have been going forever and looked as though it would never end. Until July 29, 1995, the last day Crossroads was in operation.

On Aug. 1, Crossroads manager Bill Sherrod received a notice that their occupancy limit at Crossroads had been reduced to 135, so it was decided not to open the club for the time being, ending a 24-year old tradition.

According to Sherrod's attorney, Clayton Dark of Lufkin, the members of the Improved Order of the Redmen, Coushatta Tribe No. 10, "own" the club; therefore, the private club license is under the organization's name. Sherrod is involved to the extent that he owns the building and the four lots Crossroads sits on, and he manages the club for the Redmen organization under his management company.

The previously established occupancy rate in Crossroads, according to Sherrod, was 300-plus in the dance room and 100-plus in each of the other two sections of the club. Nacogdoches City Planner Scott Ingalls said the occupancy limits were to be enforced immediately. "It's not worthwhile to operate Crossroads with only 135 people, and we don't want people standing in the streets waiting to get in," Dark said.

According to Dark, occupancy rates are set by the amount of off-street parking available. Off-street parking is when a car, as it backs out of a parking spot, still in the parking lot and not directly on the street. The city is insisting that Crossroads increase its off-street parking in order to be allowed an increase in its occupancy rate, but to do that they must meet health and safety code requirements. Dark said "health" pertains to the bathroom facilities, and "safety" deals with the exit doors.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is at a standstill until it can get legal advice from the city attorney.

"We are in a limbo. We can't appeal, just wait," Dark said. So, with a very uncertain future, the club whose name is almost synonymous with SFA may have opened its doors for the last time.

At least it was fun while it lasted.

Piney Woodstock

Nacogdoches bands from Austin, Dallas, Lufkin, and Nacogdoches rocked the Nacogdoches Expo Center for Piney Woodstock Saturday.

The event was sponsored by The Sports Shack of Lufkin, Mobile Audio and Electronics, Angelina Transportation Inc., Ramada Inn of Lufkin, and Clear Audio and Sound Tech of Lufkin. Spectators were encouraged to bring blankets and canned drinks.

"I like that you can bring your own beer," Ryan Bostick, Houston junior, said. "But it would have been better outdoors." Booths selling hand-crafted jewelry and T-shirts were set up around the arena.

Amy Waits, Fort Worth graduate, said the event "is interesting because of all the different types of people."

Troy Richards, Arlington junior, said, "There is a lot of white trash here which makes it interesting."

Heather Brewer, Marble Falls junior, said, "I think it is really swell because there are not many events in Nacogdoches that allow you to be a little freakish. It brings out the old hippies and more diverse people in Nacogdoches than you usually see." Doug Burton, one of the morning DJ's from KFOX 95, emceed the event.

"Musically this is about the biggest thing to hit East Texas," Burton said. "The event has a grass roots feel to it. The show has a bunch of bands that are just starting out. None of them has been signed by a major record label yet. It gives people a chance to see the bands before they get big. If anything it gives these bands a bigger place to practice than their garages."

Larry Barfield, founder and producer of Piney Woodstock, "started planning this year's event the day after we finished last year's."

"The biggest mental anguish is working with 80 musicians because they are right brained people," he said. "The bands helped promote themselves by distributing $2-off coupons. KSAU (SFA's campus radio station) also helped publicize the event during their programming at the end of the second summer semester. This was helpful because they are the music lifeline of Nacogdoches."

The day began at 11 a.m. with Nacogdoches band, Clutch Cargo, which played a set of original alternative rock songs.

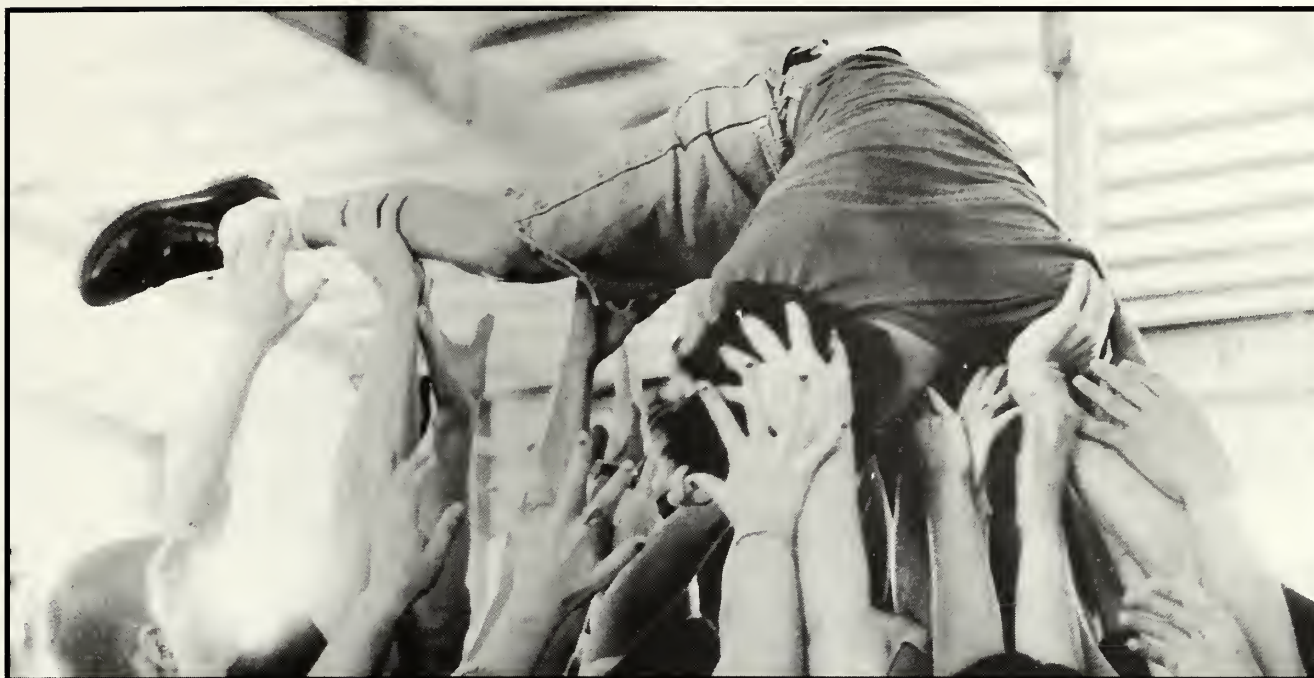

"People in Nacogdoches think we are freaks because they are not ready to hear our music," explained the band's guitarist Mark Goerlitz, Kingwood junior. "However, the event is well organized."

“The organizers threatened to cut us off if we used profanity, but we said it anyway,” lead singer Alex Karchevsky, Dallas junior, explained while wearing a shirt saying “Honk if You’re Jesus.”

“We are not going to compromise for anyone.”

Barfield explained the “main complaint from last year was that the bands were cursing too much. We try to make it a family event by letting children in free with their parents. You can get your message across without cussing.”

“All we really are is integrity,” Drew Tidwell, Mexia junior, said. He was wearing a dress and sporting green hair. “Kickers love to hate us.”

Karchevsky started a mosh pit by diving into the crowd. “We like to get with the people because that is where the energy is,” he explained. “Playing Pincy Woodstock is like taking bad acid - you never know what you are going to see or what to expect.”

“It’s all about having fun with minimal injury,” according to Karchevsky. Goerlitz painted his fingernails red for the occasion. “We like to look pretty before we go on stage,” he said.

“Spiff, another local band, sounds a lot like Smashing Pumpkins,” Mike Davenport, Missouri City sophomore, said.

Rudy Martinez, Houston senior, said, “Spiff has a lot of potential. They have a unique blend of vocals and instrumental rhythm.”

Spiff’s lead singer Chris Roybal, Dallas junior, said, “We wanted to play here because it is a bigger venue than most clubs we play. We play off the crowd.”

“We are against playing covers. We distorted Ottis Redding’s ‘Sitting on the Dock of the Bay.’

“It doesn’t take a lot of talent to do cover songs. It shows more of what you are made of to play originals. It is harder to do,” he said.

Guitarist Rick Cope, Katy senior, said, “The crowd was great. We had a mosh pit.”

The Spiff drummer, Mychael Bingham, senior at Nacogdoches High School, explained.

“We brought a lot of high school students to the show.”

The Ride of Her Life

As it takes you 300 feet is quite a bit higher than it sounds. It's a mile high, but who notices the difference when you're hanging onto the wing of a plane going 150 miles per hour?

It's not a scene from the newest Wesley Snipes film. Instead, it's a sport that is steadily growing in popularity.

It's skydiving, and it's one of the most incredible experiences you could ever hope to have.

During the month of September and through October, the East Texas Skydiving Club, based at the Gladewater airport, held a membership drive. For a reduced rate adventurous souls could take a skydiving class and make a jump all in one day.

Steve and Michelle Boyd are the brains behind the club and also own the plane and run the instruction classes. The club has been based at the Gladewater airport for about four years and has more than 23,000 jumps to its credit.

Steve Boyd, who actually runs the classes, began jumping at a very early age. But even after 22 years in the sport, the feeling he gets when he jumps out of a plane is always the same.

"The adrenaline rush never goes away," he said. "It's even better now."

And what a rush it is.

First time jumpers arrive early in the morning to receive instruction. They learn how the parachute works, how to jump and land properly to prevent injury and what to do in case of emergency.

Boyd said the popularity of skydiving has grown over the years because of movies like Point Break and Drop Zone that depict skydiving. There are even about 12 SFA students who jump regularly, according to Boyd.

However, first time jumps are not exactly like the ones shown in the movies. Those who jump with this club jump out of a small, one-engine plane only large enough for a pilot, an instructor and three students. It's also not as easy as just closing your eyes and jumping.

The hardest part of this jump is the way you exit the airplane. When the plane door is opened up, the student must step onto the wheel of the plane (which has a small metal platform on it), grab hold of the wing support, swing out to the end and wait for the instructor to say "Go!" After that, letting go of the plane is easy.

The instructional class thoroughly prepares students for what they will encounter during their jump. Students are put at ease about the safety of jumping. Surprisingly, skydiving is actually a safe sport.

The main parachutes are supported by a reserve parachute that can be opened in several different ways.

First, if the main chute does not open at all, jumpers can release the reserve with a chord on their gear. Or if the main chute is improperly opened, it can be released, which immediately opens the reserve. Finally, if a skydiver is unable to open the chute on his own, there is an "automatic activation device" that reads the altimeter on the jumper's gear and opens the parachute automatically at 1,000 feet. Without knowing these safety precautions, some people are understandably apprehensive about parachuting.

Despite some new parachuters' nervousness, Boyd said there are relatively few injuries and deaths in comparison to the millions of jumps made every year.

"Ninety percent of these deaths and injuries are self-induced (by panicking or not following directions, etc.)," he said. The skydiver is also equipped with a radio receiver so the instructor can help him or her land safely.

Skydiving is regulated by both the Federal Aviation Administration and the U.S. Parachute Association according to Boyd. Their laws require reserve chutes to be opened and repacked every 120 days regardless of whether or not they are used. "It's like riding a big air mattress," Boyd said.

There's something magical about floating high above the world and seeing just how small everything really is. It's a feeling you want to experience over and over again.

Sweatequity

Sweatequity Day, a campus-wide project designed to allow students, faculty and staff to invest time and energy in their University, was held for the second time in three years to enhance the appearance of the campus and surrounding community.

Volunteers gathered at the William R. Johnson Coliseum parking lot at 8:30 a.m., where they were treated to coffee and donuts and assigned to one of 35 projects.

"When volunteers arrive they are asked to pick up a number which will indicate their work assignment," said Ken Kennamer, director of public information and project co-chair.

Organizations which have expressed a desire to participate are assigned to various work areas.

In addition to several other projects, volunteers washed the windows at the East College and UC Cafeterias, painted campus trash cans and washed University buses and vans.

Volunteers also helped spread gravel along the Lanana Creek Trail, cleaned up the Intramural Fields and Pecan Park and put up new traffic signs.

SFA President Dan Angel initiated Sweatequity Day at SFA two years ago. The program is patterned after a program developed by former HUD Secretary George Romney in which people unable to afford the down payment for a federally financed home could build equity through repairs and improvement to the home.

Dr. Angel said he feels students, faculty, staff and Nacogdoches citizens can build pride in the university by improving and beautifying the campus.

Kennamer said he anticipated more than 1,400 people this year along with Board of Regent members Ron Adkinson, Lynn Montes and Patty Greer.

Work was completed about 11:55 a.m. and volunteers were treated to free lunch at the Ag Pond.

"There were some extremely worthwhile projects and plenty of good, hard work was done," Kennamer said. "A good time was had by all who participated."

One of a Kind

What would it be like to have four sisters? Sure, many people would answer that question.

But what would it be like to have four sisters, all of whom were born on the same day as you? Casey Davis, SFA sophomore, is one of the few people in the world who can answer that question.

"I feel very normal. When you live in it, you don't realize the uniqueness," Casey said.

On July 18, 1975, at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, Jerry and Debbie Davis became the parents of five children.

The Davis quintuplets were the first set born in Texas and are the only living set in Texas today. Casey said at the time of their birth there were 15 to 20 sets of quintuplets living in the world.

Christa, Casey, Chanda, Charla and Chelsa were born in that order, healthy, but two months premature. They each weighed from one pound, 14 ounces to three pounds. At their birth, each one was given only a 30 percent chance of living because each was so small, Casey said.

Although they all resemble one another with their red hair and freckles, only Chanda and Chelsa are identical twins.

"We blame [being a quintuplet] on Chelsa since she was the last one born," Casey said.

Being the only set of quintuplets in Texas, the Davis' have always attracted a lot of attention from the media, both local and national.

As children, they did commercials in the Dallas area for Dairy Queen and they modeled pajamas. Their agent especially encouraged Casey to pursue an acting career.

Alone, Casey did about 10 commercials including one for Hyatt Hotels starring Bob Uecker that aired during one of the Super Bowls. He also did a documentary and had auditions for the movies "Places in the Heart" and "The Boy Who Could Fly," for which he got called back.

In 1988, eager to escape the attention of the media and live a normal life, the Davis family moved from Lewisville, a Dallas suburb, where the quintuplets had lived since birth, to Winnsboro, north of Tyler.

Jerry and Debbie then began the adventure of living with five teenagers at once, four of whom were girls.

"There were many before-school fights over clothes. The fights sometimes included broken mirrors and doors," Casey said. "One would get up at 2 a.m. to hide an outfit so she could wear it. They would even wear my clothes sometimes."

As Casey got older he began to enjoy the role of the only boy.

"I kind of felt like an only child for awhile because I didn't have to compete with anybody like the girls did," he said.

As they grew older, the quintuplets began to go their separate ways and became even more independent.

Today, Chanda and Charla share an apartment in Tyler and attend Tyler Junior College. Christa, who is married and has a three month-old daughter, also attends Tyler Junior College. Chelsa lives in Mount Pleasant and attends Northeast Texas Community College.

Casey is beginning his second year at SFA this semester. He originally came here to play football, but he quit after last year's season because he says his interests changed. He hasn't decided on a major yet.

Casey said he only talks to his sisters every few weeks. "But, when we do see each other it is like a family reunion because we are all together again," he said smiling.

The fact that they are quintuplets will always keep the Davises in the spotlight, but for Casey it isn't something he thinks about much.

He does admit he likes the attention to a point.

"Talking about them makes me feel closer to them. Especially since we don't see each other very often now," Casey said. "Occasionally I will tell people I'm a quintuplet just to see if they will believe me. They usually don't."

They Go Together

From situation comedies to soap operas to Double Mint gum commercials, it seems as though people are fascinated with twins. From 90210's Brenda and Brandon Walsh to the Olsen twins from the TV's Full House, people seem to want twins to be the novelty they are portrayed on television and the big screen.

But what is it really like to have a twin, especially one who goes to the same school, who even has some classes with you? The answer to that question is complex and complicated.

Webster's New World Dictionary defines the word twin as "being one of a pair; either of two persons or things much alike." But is this true? Can one's character be summed up by a handy little ready-to-go pocket dictionary definition?

Not according to Esther and Elena Casarez, 22 year-old seniors from West Columbia.

The identical twins come across just as charming and personable as their TV counterparts, explaining the ups and downs of having someone around who is almost your mirror image.

"It's nice because you've always got each other - you always have someone to talk to," said Elena, an elementary education major.

"We are also the best of friends," said Esther, a speech communication major. "Sometimes at the end of the day when I haven't seen her for awhile, I miss her and I want to talk."

The two really do seem to feed off of and understand each other the way no one else possibly could. "There are a lot of little things we say to each other that no one else would really understand, kind of like another language. A lot of inside jokes," Esther said with a sly smile.

Sibling rivalry does have its place, however. The two admit to having an occasional argument, just as all sisters inevitably do. "We fight sometimes, but that's normal," Elena said.

"We're also pretty competitive, too," Esther said.

"When we have the same classes, or if one of us has a class the other has had, we tend to do better; like 'if she gets an 'A' then I had better get an 'A'.'"

But all is not fun and games, as the silver screen might have us believe. It seems as though the very fun non-twins seem to have with the idea is what irritates twins the most. "People treat us too much alike," Elena said. "We're different people, so treat us like it."

To be carelessly labeled as a unit rather than as two distinct and unique people seems to be a somewhat consistent source of aggravation. "Sometimes when we walk into a room people are like, 'Hey it's the twins,' rather than 'It's Elena and Esther',"

Esther said. "They don't think of us as individuals."

For all of their differences, it is obvious each one of this duo is the perfect compliment to the other. "She's the best person in the world to talk to - I'll always come to her for advice," Elena said of her sister.

It seems as though being so physically and emotionally close to another person all but demands a certain amount of honesty and understanding. "Elena is the most fun person I know," Esther said, smiling. "She knows me so well, and she can always make me laugh more than anybody."

It would seem as though the experience of being twins is much more unique and complex than it is sometimes perceived to be. It just goes to show, you can't judge books by their covers - even when the covers look the same.

SFA Adds Four New Degrees to Curriculum

SFA made plans to add three new masters degrees to its curriculum and another doctoral degree during this academic year.

The University's only doctoral degree is found in the College of Forestry, however, the College of Education will add a doctorate degree, which should be available by fall 1997.

In May, the Legislature appropriated approximately $650,000 to start this degree program.

According to Dr. Thomas Franks, dean of education, the money will be used to hire faculty members who have experience teaching and directing doctorate dissertations at other universities.

Dr. William Heeney, interim chair of secondary education, said the plan is still being developed within the department and then will move through the various steps at SFA for approval. After local approvals are complete, he said the proposal will move to the Higher Education Coordinating Board, a process that could take up to a year.

The Department of Social Work began offering a masters in social work, and the College of Sciences and Mathematics will offer a masters in science with a major in environmental science and a masters in science with a major in biotechnology.

The Master of Social Work degree should be effective in fall 1996, according to Dr. Michael Daley, chairman of the social work department.

"The degree is a two-year program, and when it is fully implemented we plan to top enrollment at 75 students," Dr. Daley said.

According to Dr. Daley, funding for the degree came from the university and from a special legislative item.

"Our program will be different from other masters level programs in Texas," he said. "Virtually all the other schools offer specializations, but the nature of our degree will be to offer a very general background in social work."

He said the department will add three new faculty members next year to accommodate this new program.

Another new degree to be offered at SFA is a Master of Science with a major in environmental science, designed to provide a person with the proper education necessary to utilize natural science principles to solve environmental problems.

According to Dr. Thomas Atchison, dean of the College of Sciences and Mathematics, the degree will offer six areas of emphasis: biology, chemistry, geology, industrial hygiene/ safety, public and environmental health and environmental management.

"This degree is a collaborative project with the University of Texas Health Center (UTHC) in Tyler," Dr. Atchison said. "The Tyler center has 35 educational or medical doctors in their research science department but does not have the authority to offer a degree."

Dr. Atchison said the Tyler center had a desire to participate with an institution that can award degrees, like SFA. Members of the SFA faculty will teach and research with the staff in Tyler to teach certain courses, like Environmental Chemistry or Occupational Health.

While the degree cannot be awarded until the fall of 1996, students began to work on the degree in the spring.

The College of Forestry is also involved in this joint venture as they bring to the program an emphasis in environmental management, Dr. Atchison said.

"The plan is to create an electronic connection between UTHC and SFA so that the institutes could participate in some sort of telecommunications, whether it be video, e-mail, sharing computer resources or some other form of distance learning," he said.

"We hope to have an electronic lab that will have the right equipment here in the Miller Science Building," Dr. Atchison said. "We are still unsure how this is all going to work out. We plan to share equipment between the two institutions."

Another degree to be offered by the College of Sciences and Mathematics is a Master of Science degree with a major in biotechnology, a second program which involves the collaborative efforts of SFA and UTHC.

"There is a great need for biotechnology in the Tyler and Longview area, and we feel that SFA can provide students who could help clean up the environment," Dr. Atchison said.

The degree will be available in the fall of 1996.

SWAT Teams Perform 'Miracle' on Elderlies' Homes

When the "call" goes out, the SWAT program arrives to save the day; but not in the traditional image of blue fatigues and automatic weapons. This SWAT team arms itself with paint brushes, buckets of "elbow grease", and good, old fashioned brotherly love. In this case, SWAT stands for Students Working Against Threats to the Elderly.

SWAT came about through the creative brainstorming of SFA alumnus, Nydia Boyett, who still works as a private volunteer and advisor for the program.

The students of the Gerontology Club work together with Adult

Protective Services, a division of the Texas Department of Protective and regulatory Services.

Adult Protective Services screens clients for the group by looking for elderly people who, because of medical problems or lack of resources, are unable to maintain the upkeep of their homes.

Once a home is chosen, a SWAT team is picked based on the size and ability of the group. The teams range in size from a dozen people to as many as 30 or 40 workers for a larger dwelling.

The homes chosen receive a "makeover." The houses are thoroughly cleaned, repainted and refurnished.

The yards are also cleaned. Since its start, SWAT has refurbished 25 houses.

The clients are not charged for the work, and local businesses donate food, cleaning supplies, lumber and paint.

According to the program's faculty advisor, Dr. J.B. Watson, the clients have genuine needs, and the program has concrete results that the team members can see in their eight-hour work day.

"Basically what we do is a miracle. The before and after pictures are incredible. Both clients and volunteers get something out of it. The best part is talking to the clients and seeing their faces after we're done," said Brandon Flournoy, Austin senior and SWAT student coordinator.

Over the two-year period since it was formed, the SWAT team has garnered a great deal of respect for SFA's Gerontology Club.

The club received a $2,000 grant from Newman's Own Inc., actor Paul Newman's charity program, after the SWAT program was selected by USA Weekend Magazine as one of 50 programs recognized on a national level in the 4th Annual USA Weekend Make a Difference Day.

Yoga Jacks offers alternative stress relief

Along with the academic and social pressures of college life, stress is and will always be, an enormous part of our lives that can allow tension and frustration to impact our daily lives.

As individuals, we deal with relieving stress in several different ways. Nevertheless, there is one SFA organization that some students took an active part in to eliminate stress and create a physical and mental balance between their body and mind, through yoga.

This self interest organization is called the Yoga Jacks.

"The Yoga Jacks are SFA students who are interested in yoga, and the lasting effects it can have on the human body," John Gardner, Yoga Jacks president, said.

The purpose of this organization is to help students not only experience alternative methods of exercise but to find a way to eliminate stress caused by college life anxiety.

The Yoga Jacks came into existence in January 95 through the initiative of Gardner, who is a certified yoga instructor from Hot Springs, Ark.

The Yoga Jacks participate in Hatha Yoga, which does not focus on a strong religious belief or a background in eastern philosophy. Basically this form of yoga concentrates more on teaching concentration and relaxation.

Even though yoga originated from Hinduism, there may be a strong misconception the Yoga Jacks organization evolves around religious principles that could cause students not to participate.

"The Yoga Jacks are not a religious organization, and yoga is not a religion," Gardner said. "The purpose of the Yoga Jacks is to help people understand that there is an alternative way of thinking and provide an atmosphere for individuals to make new friends."

Dr. Thomas Segady, Yoga Jacks advisor and associate professor of sociology, agrees that some students will see yoga as a religious conflict, but in reality the focus of yoga is about enhancing self and not religion.

This organization is targeted toward enhancing an individual's understanding of a different philosophy of life, as well as creating an atmosphere to help someone feel different and better about themselves.

"I think people participate in yoga because they are looking for different kinds of alternatives to exercise," Dr. Segady said. "Yoga helps people to feel differently about themselves as well as increasing relaxation through relieving stress and tension."

Through performing Hatha Yoga, Gardner explains how the lasting physical effects of the stretching and meditating, known as postures, can help someone onto the road to a healthier lifestyle.

"The posture techniques used in yoga are taught slowly to help individuals become accustomed to performing them," Gardner said. "When you become accustomed to your body, you are then more in tune with your body, and this focus can help increase metabolism and provide flexibility, which are key components to living longer.

Yoga works with the body and mind to help create an inner balance between the two.

"Your mind and body are inseparable," Brett Williams, Dallas junior, said. "When you relax your body, your mind follows. You feel more focused, sleep better and become more flexible. Yoga is definitely a tool that will aid you in increasing your awareness and realizing the connection between the mind and body."

ROTC runs ball halfway to Huntsville

Running at 3 a.m. is usually not considered an enjoyable activity. However, don't tell that to 16 SFA ROTC cadets who made an early morning trip in October to Sam Houston State University in Huntsville... on foot.

This was the beginning of a new tradition of running the game ball to the SFA/Sam Houston football game by both school's ROTC programs.

The game, pitting traditional Southland Conference rivals, was billed as the "Battle of the Pincy Woods."

Lt. Bryan Cannon said Sam Houston approached SFA with the idea, and it was immediately accepted.

The pilgrimage began at 3 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, in Homer Bryce Stadium at the 50-yard line. From there, the cadets journeyed down University Drive to Highway 259.

"I really think the cadets enjoyed it," said Ranger Commanding Officer Richard Owen, Nacogdoches junior. "At first it was a lot of hard work, but I'm glad to start a tradition."

The cadets took 3-mile shifts to travel the 45 miles to Apple Springs Ranger Station, the midpoint where the ball was passed to Sam Houston cadets.

At Apple Springs the ball was handed off to the Sam Houston contingent.

At a formal ceremony Owen, along with a Sam Houston cadet, presented the ball to the game's officials.

"It's something to see, a guy running down the road with a football," Owen said.

Rodeo Club

MEMBERSHIP REQUIREMENTS:

Must be interested in rodeo or horses, cows, boots, hats, Wrangler or Rocky Mountain Jeans, C & W music or two steppin', cowboys, cowgirls, pick-up trucks, John Wayne.
(One or all of the above.)

Rodeo Team

Row 2: Robert Stovall, Scott Davis, Lance Pate, Matt Sciba, D. Caleb Murphy, Dusty Brooks, Kimberly Jones.

The SFA Rodeo Club, one of the largest student organizations on campus, strives to bring together students with a common interest in rodeo, the "cowboy" lifestyle and the heritage of the American West. Since 1991 it has held a membership of at least 140 people.

As a part of the Rodeo Club, the Rodeo Team competes in the Southern Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association. A member of the team is eligible for travel reimbursement, practice facilities, stock, coaches and limited scholarships. To be eligible for these benefits, a person must be active in the club and attend team practices as spelled out in the club constitution.

The Rodeo Club is active in the community and on campus. They have a "Bullburger" sale at the annual county fair and a shoeshine booth at Jitterbugs to supplement the University's travel allocation, work at local rodeo events, such as the "Bull Bash" and the Nacogdoches Jaycee's PRCA Rodeo and have adopted a portion of Loop 224 as part of the Texas Adopt-a-Highway program. They host their own annual NIRA sanctioned rodeo and the club trip is to McNeese State University's rodeo in Lake Charles, LA. Plans for an intramural rodeo and sports tournament are under consideration.

A unique facet of the club is the existence of its own Rodeo Club Alumni Association, the only such club at SFA. The two clubs work together to sponsor the Alumni Rodeo as a benefit for the scholarship funds. These efforts have raised more than $45,000 in the last five years.

A person does not have to compete in rodeo to be a member of the club. In fact about 75 percent of the club is not active in the NIRA.

Joey Baker, Crockett Sophomore, holds on for his life while competing in bull riding for the SFA Rodeo Club.

How to become a bull rider:

*"Fill your mouth with marbles and ride a bull.
Every time you fall off, spit out a marble.
When you've lost all your marbles, then you're a bullrider."*

-Ronnie Sitton, SFA Rodeo Club Advisor

Three halls remain closed

Three residence halls, Gibbs Hall, North Hall and South Hall were closed this year due to renovations and repairs.

According to Ms. Jamie Fain, Director of Housing, Gibbs Hall was closed for major renovation to the electrical and plumbing systems. Fain added that North and South Hall were both closed in anticipation of major repairs to the Heating Ventilation and Cooling (HVAC) systems.

The renovation of North and South Hall has been estimated at $1.6 million, according to Fain.

Fain said the number of dorm residents was down this year. "The total number of students currently living in the residence halls is 3,260," she said.

Dressing for success... Rushees learn dos and don'ts

The Panhellenic Council again sponsored a fashion show demonstrating what to wear during formal rush.

Those participating in rush are required to be female, have an overall GPA of at least 2.2 and have completed 12 hours.

Kim Stankunas, Plano senior and publicity chair for the Panhellenic Council, organized and emceed the event. The purpose of the fashion show was to "let rushees know what to wear during rush parties," she said.

The fashions worn in the show were from The Squash Blossom and The Fashion Shop located downtown. They were modeled by members of the council.

The show was broken down into the rounds of rush parties. Clothing selected demonstrated that as the rounds progress, dress becomes more formal.

After the fashion show, the audience of 175 rushees was encouraged to go around to each sorority's brag table and talk to women already in sororities. The tables included sorority paraphernalia including picture frames, bags, T-shirts, stuffed animals and lap boards.

"I think it was a fabulous opportunity for the girls to see what sororities are all about," Jeanna Haley, Houston sophomore, said.

The Greek life at Stephen F. Austin is exemplified by the Eta Tau chapter of the Sigma Chi Fraternity. Founded in April of 1975 and based upon high ideals of brotherhood and leadership, the Sigma Chi Fraternity, represented in Nacogdoches, is proud to be among the most active Greek organizations. The colors of blue and Old Gold along with the white rose represent our fraternity nationwide.

Social events include but are not limited to: Derby Days, annual Halloween parties, Homecoming participation, sweetheart recognition, seasonal Kami-Kaze and beach parties and outstanding alumni relations. Sigma Chi has the reputation of being prominent in campus activities as well. These consist of representatives excelling in intramurals, Student Government Association, Order of Omega, Intrafraternity Council and campus entertainment.

As a service organization we achieve recognition for our assistance in: Adopt a Highway, Clean-up Nacogdoches, blood, food and toy drives and Sweatequity Day. Recently we came together to help build a community playground. Our nationwide philanthropies include the Cleo Wallace Village for Children and Childrens Miraele Network. Some of the distinguished alumni are Tom Selleck, Woody Harrelson, David Letterman, Brad Pitt, Mike Ditka, Warren Beatty and Brett Farve.

With membership in Sigma Chi, one can expect to obtain a solid framework of leadership, with other benefits including bonds of brotherhood, high ambitious motives and decision making, utilizing the principles of friendship, justice and learning.

Applied Arts & Sciences

Dr. James O. Standley, Dean

Undergraduate Students: 1,311

Full-time Faculty: 40

Fields of Study: Applied arts and sciences, communication, public administration, journalism, mass communication, radio-tv, speech communication, speech, criminal justice, military science, social work, interdisciplinary studies, career/self-improvement.

"In preparing students for professional roles, it is tempting to "mass produce" our product. After all, this has worked well for America, making it the envy of the industrialized world. Surely, we reason, just teaching more and teaching it faster than anybody else will offer students a sufficient background from which they can select solutions to the problems they will face in their careers."

"In Applied Arts and Sciences a different kind of curriculum is being built. It is one in which students will learn to reason insightfully. They are trained in ways to think from multiple perspectives. Our graduates are being exposed to critical thinking skills that take them beyond the interests of the traditions of exclusive groups."

"In the professional fields represented in Applied Arts and Sciences, our graduates will be facing some of the most perplexing questions in public policy, law, ethics and the reasonable uses of the media. Pre-professional students in the fields of communication, criminal justice, social work and military leadership must have their creativity and initiative challenged. Our faculty is prepared to meet this challenge. We are working within the overall mission of Stephen F. Austin to produce graduates who will make a difference in the workplace and meet the challenges we face from economic to social concerns."

College of Business

Dr. Marlin C. Young, Dean

Undergraduate students: 2,116

Full-time Faculty: 63

Fields of Study: Accounting, computer science, computer information systems, economics, finance, general business, international business management, marketing and office systems.

"The college contains five departments with 68 faculty members: Accounting, Computer Science, Economic and Finance, General Business and Management and Marketing. Students are simply deferring their formal training in business. More and more undergraduates recognize that a bachelor's degree will not be a sufficient credential in the increasingly competitive labor market. So, many have decided to pursue a liberal arts or science degree, and then obtain their formal education in business and management at the graduate level."

College of Forestry

Dr. R. Scott Beasley, Dean

Undergraduate Students: 496

Full-time Faculty: 17

Fields of Study: Forestry, environmental science, forest management, wildlife management, recreation management.

"Enrollment of the College of Forestry has more than doubled since 1987 as interest in natural resources conservation and management has grown. Enrollment increases in Environmental Science, Forest Wildlife Management and Forest Recreation Management have accounted for much of the growth."

"However, Forestry and Forest Management majors continue to make up about half of our student body. Graduates in the College of Forestry can look forward to careers that address vital issues of our society. They will manage, conserve and protect our natural resources in order to provide wood and fiber products, wildlife habitat, clean water, clean air, forage, recreational opportunities and aesthetic experiences. Faculty in the state's only College of Forestry are dedicated to excellence in teaching, research and service."

College of Education

Dr. Thomas D. Franks, Dean
Undergraduate students: 2,734
Full-time Faculty: 90

Fields of Study: General agriculture, agriculture, agriculture development, agriculture education, animal science, gen/pre-veterinary, horticulture, agriculture machinery, agronomy, elementary education, early childhood, education, health and physical education, health education, physical education, general home economics, teachers of young children, vocational home economics, fashion merchandising, family living and child development, food system management, food and nutrition, hospitality administration, interior design, counseling, orientation and mobility, secondary education (administration), secondary education (supervising), rehab services, special education, deaf and hard of hearing, speech and hearing, speech pathology, visually impaired, secondary education, kinesiology, health science, interdisciplinary studies.

"A review of departmental goals for each department for 1995-96 reflects a commitment on the part of the faculty to stay on the cutting edge of developments in their fields and to respond to many of society's greatest needs. Common themes evident in our goals for 1995-96 include preparing students for emerging careers and entrepreneurial opportunities; attracting and retaining qualified students who represent the various cultural and ethnic populations of Texas; keeping curricula current; and continuing the restructuring of programs in teacher and administrator preparation.

"The overriding goal of the faculty in the College of Education is to provide instruction which maximizes learning for students in all of our academic programs."

"A commitment on the part of the faculty to stay on the cutting edge of developments in their fields and to respond to many of society's greatest needs."

College of Fine Arts

Dr. Ron Jones, Dean
Undergraduate students: 412
Full-time faculty: 444
Fields of Study: Art, Music, Theatre

"The arts enrich all our lives and enhance the cultural climate through musical performances, dramatic productions, and exhibits of images. A world without artist expression, a world without an aesthetic exploration of ideas, a world without heightened sensibilities is unimaginable. The College of Fine Arts at SFA offers academic and professional degree programs through the departments of Art, Music and Theatre. The faculty of the College, therefore, seeks to provide appropriate professional preparation to students aspiring to careers in the visual and performing arts, relevant education experiences for the arts for the general university student, and comprehensive and quality visual and performing arts experiences for the university and the East Texas community.

"Students might wish to take advantage of the exceptional University and college visual and performing arts series offered to the faculty, staff, students of the university and the East Texas Community. These two series, as well as numerous departmental offerings, provide a variety of professional quality work."

"During the 1995-1996 academic year, several exciting opportunities are unfolding for the College of Fine Arts. Ground breaking and the construction of a major addition to the Music Building; The installation of the second national art competition, Texas National 96; The first year of a major theatre student exchange program with Rose-Bruford College in London; The establishment of the Orchestra of the Pines; The exploration of great exhibition and technological opportunities for the visual arts; and increased student experiences with professionals in all three of the arts."

"A world without artistic expression, a world without an aesthetic exploration of ideas, a world without heightened sensibilities is unimaginable."

College of Liberal Arts

College of Sciences & Mathematics

Dr. James Speer, Interim Dean

Undergraduate students: 2,225

Full-time faculty: 96

Fields of Study: English, geography, history, humanities, French, Spanish, political science, public administration, psychology, sociology, gerontology

"The College of Liberal Arts at SFA includes the departments of English and Philosophy, History, Modern Languages, Political Science and Geography, Psychology and Sociology. Though these departments the college fills three main functions. It provides the majority of general education courses all SFA students must take; it teaches upper division courses for its majors; and it offers advanced degrees in psychology, English and history."

"In all that they do, the faculty and staff of the College of Liberal Arts seek to foster the development of young adults who think critically and analytically, who enjoy the range of aesthetic experience afforded by the finest work of human imagination, and who exhibit genuine sensitivity to the ethical concerns that confront contemporary Americans."

"The College is proud of its faculty: men and women who are as committed to high quality instruction as they are to scholarship and research. As a result of their dedication and productivity, many of the Liberal Arts faculty have been named SFA Regents' Professors, and a number have the prestigious Albright Award for research and teaching abroad. The College is also proud of its distinguished graduates who have contributed importantly to their fields."

"The faculty and staff of the College of Liberal Arts seek to foster the development of young adults who think critically and analytically, who enjoy the range of aesthetic experience afforded by the finest work of human imagination, and who exhibit genuine sensitivity to the ethical concerns that confront contemporary Americans."

Dr. Thomas A. Atchison, Dean

Undergraduate students: 1,483

Full-time faculty: 77

Fields of Study: Biology, chemistry, geology, earth science technology, math, math teaching, medical technology, natural science, general nursing, post-RN nursing, physics, statistics, pre-professional. Pre-professional programs: dental hygiene, dentistry, engineering, health information management, medicine, medical record administration, medical technology, occupational therapy, optometry, pharmacy, physical therapy, physician assistant, physics-engineering (3-2), pre-law.

"As our society continues to advance technologically, there is an increased need for understanding science and mathematics. The College of Sciences and Mathematics addresses this need by contributing to the liberal education of all students through the presentation of fundamental concepts and methods of science and mathematics. The faculty of this college also provide the education and counseling required for professional studies and careers of a scientific nature as well as those required for professional programs in health and engineering sciences."

FOOTBALL

The SFA football team entered the 1995 season with a bad taste in its mouth. Though the Lumberjacks had been ranked in The Sports Network's Top 25 poll since Sept. 13, 1993, and were coming off consecutive winning seasons for the first time since 1988-89, the 1994 squad finished with a 6-3-2 record and without an invitation to the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

What made the playoff snubbing even more difficult was the fact that the two ties, which came against defending (and eventual) national champion Youngstown State and Southland Conference champion North Texas, came when the opponents kicked field goals as time expired to register costly ties against the Lumberjacks.

After spending the off-season contemplating what could have been, the Lumberjacks started the season hungry to make up for the disappointment from the previous season.

Starting the season with convincing wins against nationally ranked Northern Iowa (26-7) and preseason No. 1 and defending national champion Youngstown State (27-0), the Lumberjacks landed at No. 5 in the national poll, the highest ranking, at the time, under fourth year head coach John Pearce.

Wins against NCAA Division II power Angelo State (17-3) and Henderson State (31-6) followed, boosting the Lumberjacks to fourth in the polls.

The Lumberjacks entered the conference schedule undefeated and on a mission. Wins over conference opponents Sam Houston, in "The Battle of the Pineywoods", and Nicholls State along with a non-conference road test against tradition-rich Samford University, propelled the Lumberjacks to a No. 3 ranking and a Homecoming showdown against the top ranked McNeese State Cowboys. Unfortunately the Cowboys proved too good for the Lumberjacks, winning 34-16. Though the Lumberjacks came out of the contest with their first loss of the season, at 7-1, and McNeese stayed in the top spot at 8-0, the Jacks didn't give up on their dreams of a trip to the playoffs and a national title.

The Lumberjacks finished out the season with conference victories over Southwest Texas State (50-21) and nationally ranked Northwestern State (34-29) to earn second place, behind top ranked McNeese in the SLC, a 9-1 record and an invitation to the NCAA playoffs.

Even though they had made the playoffs, a goal of the team since the season before, the Lumberjacks did not let up. By hosting a playoff game for the first time since the 1989 season, the most successful in SFA history, the Lumberjacks gave the faithful a lot to be thankful for by disposing of Eastern Illinois 34-29 the day after Thanksgiving.

The Lumberjack opponent in the second round was the second-ranked Appalachian State Mountaineers. Though heavy underdogs, the Lumberjacks found a way to win, earning a berth in the quarterfinals, where they lost big to the powerful Montana State Grizzlies to end an exciting season.

FIGHT 'N SPIRIT

Kalinec

When people doubt the spirit of the Lumberjacks just remind them of the Homecoming of '95.

The students were not about to let the cheerleaders of McNeese State rub their faces in the fact that the Cowboys were beating their undefeated Jacks.

When the opposing team's cheerleader had the nerve to interrupt the SFA sideline with a run of their flag, the students put down their collective feet and fist.

The incident showed there is still spirit in Nacogdoches. With a crowd of 23,617, there was a chance of some emotions flaring.

The Lumberjacks were ranked #3 and McNeese was on the top at #1, so the taunting was not appreciated by the Jacks.

Two weeks later the head coach from Northwestern followed suit when a similar incident happened at their game with McNeese.

The bottom line is, don't mess with the Lumberjacks because the fans will hurt you!

Top: Nacogdoches police put an end to the fighting by removing students and sending them back to their seats.

Side: Spirits were high at the McNeese game. Everyone came out in their purple and white to show their dedication to SFA. Some of the students even painted their spirit on them.

Top: Nacogdoches police and UPD had to use force to control the crowd during the fight. The crowd, consisting of four fraternities and several SFA and McNeese fans, had to be broken up by law enforcement personnel.

Side: The riot at the end zone flared many tempers between SFA and McNeese fans and resulted in violence which was quickly controlled by law enforcement officers.

LADY JACK

The Ladyjacks dominated the Southland Conference once again. The team has taken control of the conference and is not willing to let go.

SFA won the conference title for the third year in a row and has shown that there is no stopping the Ladyjacks.

Not only is the team unstoppable but the players are also being honored for their talents.

Krisna Johnson, Houston junior, and Brooke Newbury, Austin junior, both were honored by the conference when they made the all-SLC team and the all-SLC tournament team. Bianca Aranda, San Antonio freshman, was also recognized when she made the all-SLC honorable mention team and the all-SLC team for the season.

Two players were also recognized for their academic abilities. Newbury and Susie Schumann, Round Rock sophomore, were both named to the GTE All-Academic team.

Along with having an outstanding year, the ladies broke several records this year. Johnson broke the record for kills and digs for a season and led the conference in kills. Aranda broke the sets record by two sets and April Taylor, Marshall sophomore, broke the record for block assists.

As a team they broke the record for the most blocked assists for the year. The team had a great year and a SLC championship trophy to show it.

low expectations. That's what the Lumberjack basketball team faced at the start of the 1995-96 basketball season.

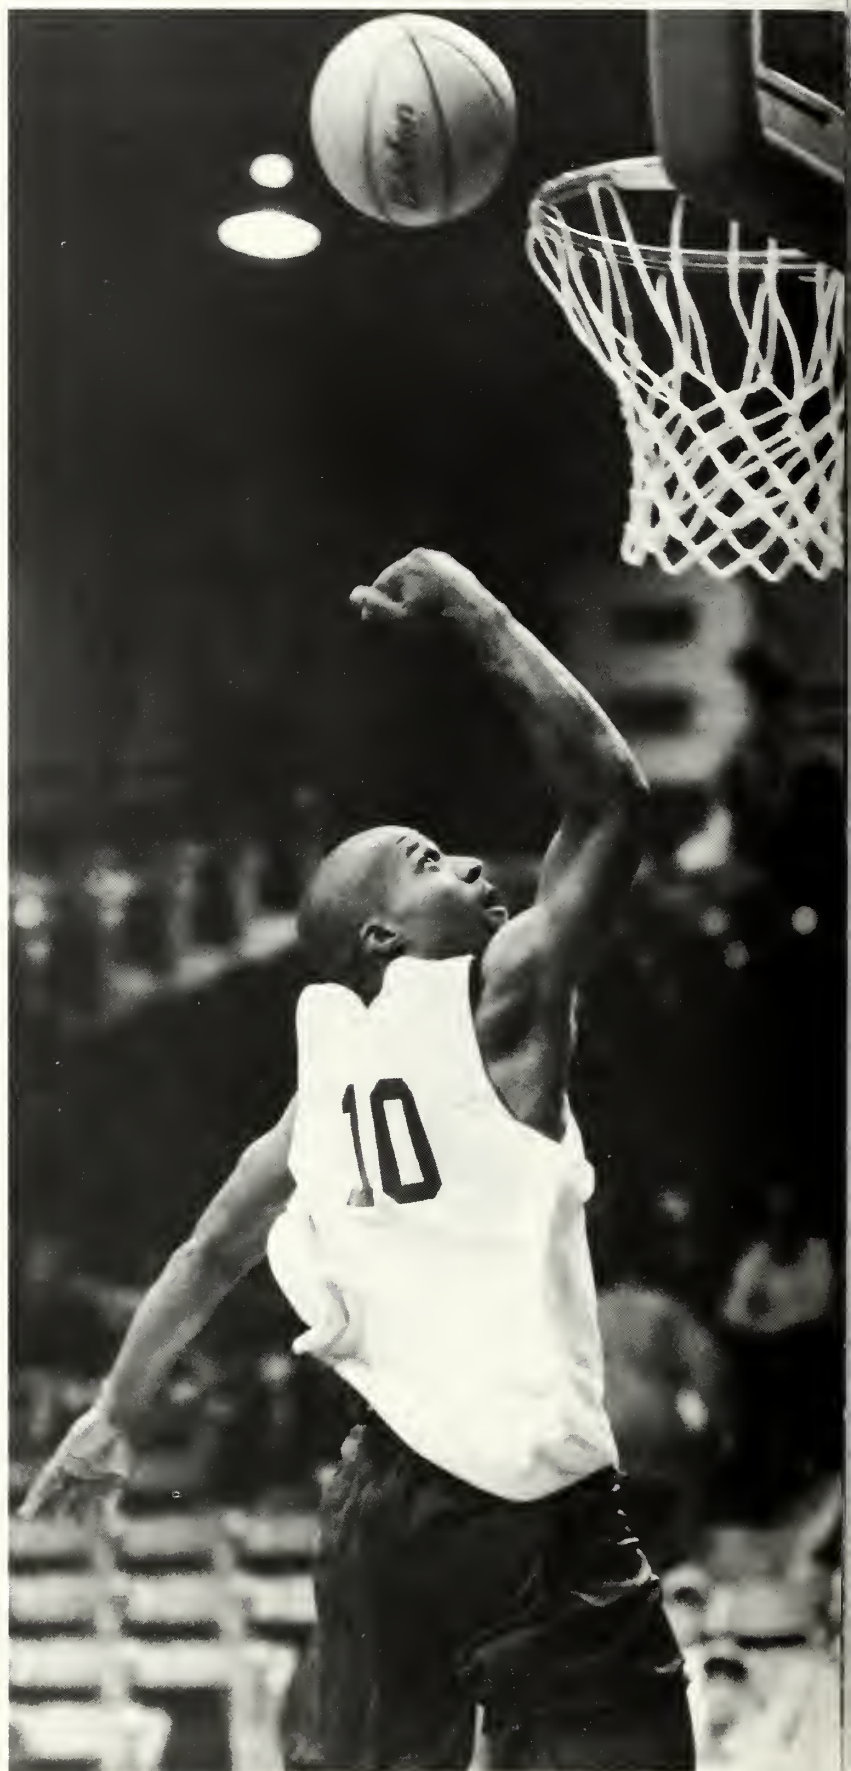

The Lumberjacks returned four starters and seven letterman from a squad that fell just four points short of playing for a berth in the NCAA tournament, the prize for winning the Southland Conference Classic title.

With the exception of former Lumberjack Kevin Barker, an Academic All-American in his playing days, the 1995-96 squad returned the top six scorers from the previous year.

The team was led by Javan Rouzan, Lynwood, Calif., senior, and Eric Leftwich, Victoria senior. Rouzan, a 6-8, 240-pound power forward, was among the nation's top rebounders for the past two seasons, and Leftwich, a 6-6 forward, picked up the scoring burden left by Barker.

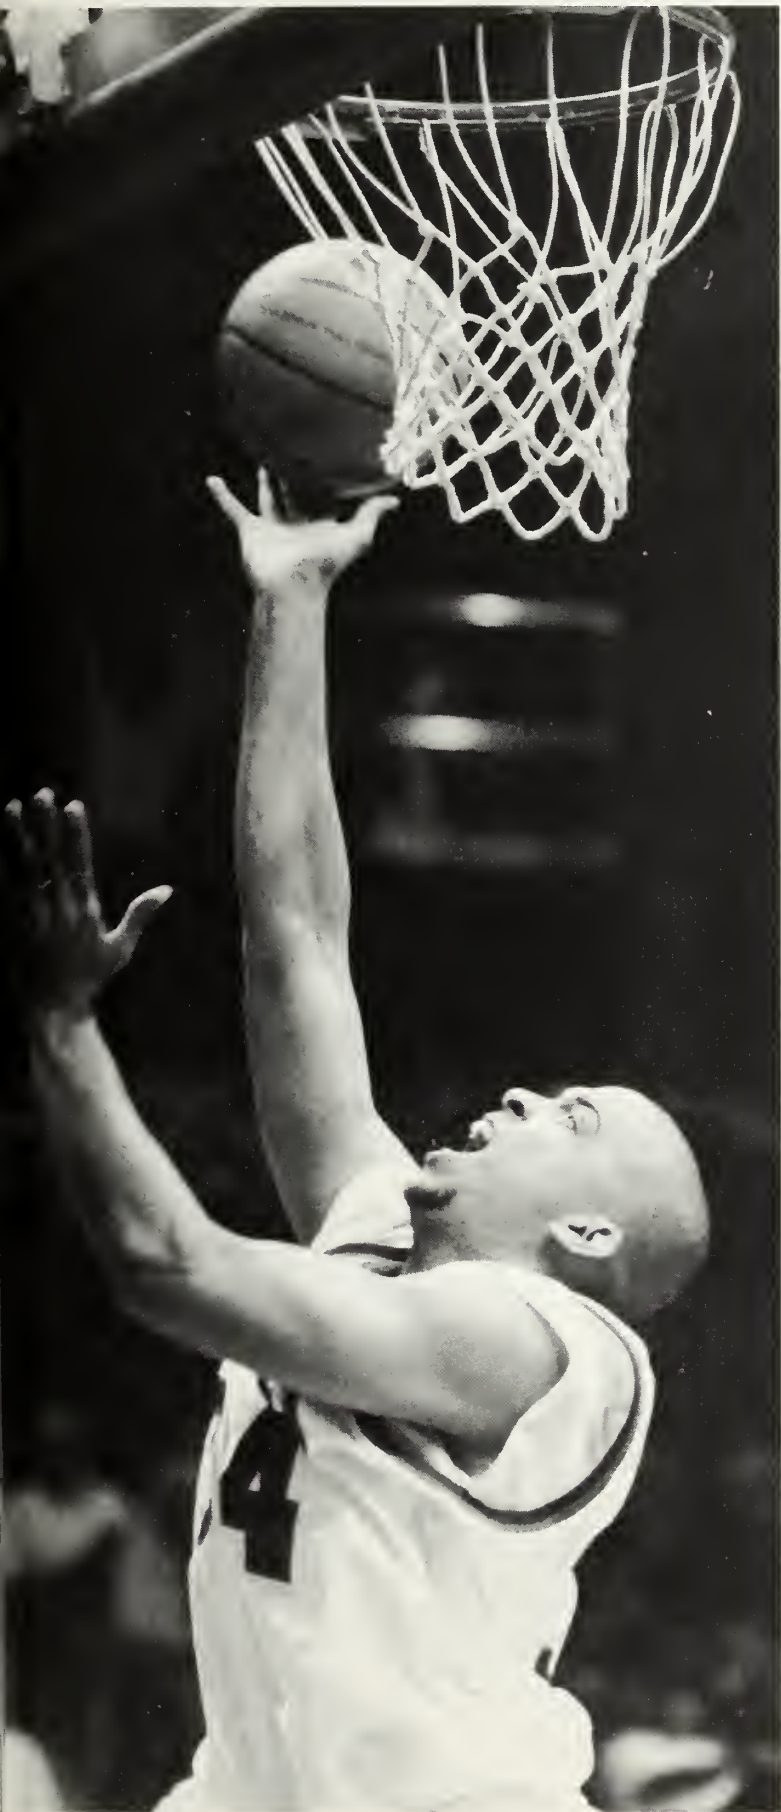

Among the many highlights of the 1995-96 season was a trip to Los Angeles to play the defending national champion UCLA Bruins.

The Ladyjack basketball team started the season with two goals – to recapture the Southland Conference title and to make it to this year's NCAA Midwest Regional at SFA's own William R. Johnson Coliseum.

SFA came into the season ready to dominate again and did just that. After a bad start in Iowa the Ladyjacks came home and won the Dial Soap Classic which began a great season.

The team was young but determined not to let that stop them. All of last year's starters returned to lead to team to victory. The Ladies worked hard to show their talents and take over on the court.

The powerful and unstoppable women from the bench helped lead the team during another action-packed season.

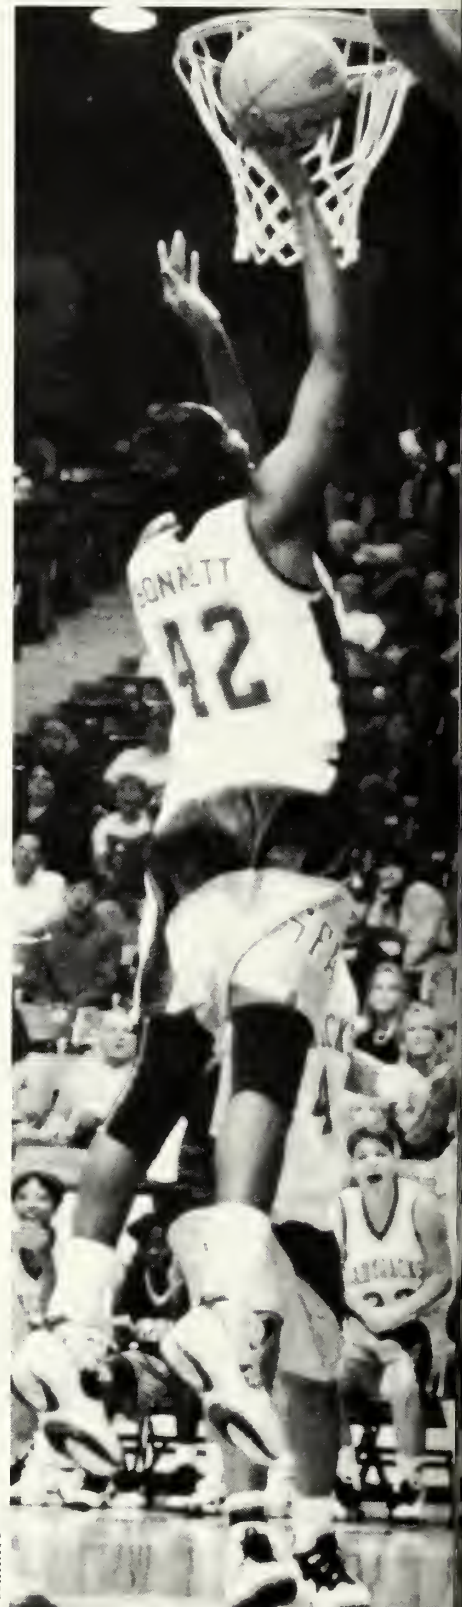

The Ladyjacks had several players win honors for their talent, both athletic and academic.

The women of the Southland Conference had their spirit up when their home was announced as the site of the Midwest Regionals. With everyone saying "the road to the Final Four goes through Nacogdoches and against the Ladyjacks" there was no chance of the ladies not having a big season.

The fans got a treat when they came to watch the Stephen F. Austin Ladyjacks take the court and run over and through the opposition.

The athletic program added a new team this year to expand the women's sports roster. SFA added a soccer team, which replaces the women's soccer club team.

The team had a lot to learn to get ready for the competition of Division I schools. The Ladyjacks were coached by Rachel Sanders from the top program at the University of Texas.

The team won one game this year. The Ladyjacks were one of two first year soccer teams in the conference.

The Ladyjacks had to learn to keep up with the other teams and to adjust to the fact that there are no breaks in team soccer.

The team did a good job being a first year team with only one player who had played in Division I competition. With only two seniors on the team the Ladyjacks can only go up. The team is young, and the players will be together for a while to learn and improve as the years go by.

The Ladyjack softball team was under construction this year after losing its coach of 12 years. SFA is now under the leadership of Ruth Wright.

Wright was determined to make the team a contender against their competing teams. She made sure the women learned the basics and how to win.

The team has been in a slump for the past couple of years, and they were determined to break the streak.

Players worked hard in the off season to become a team that could be a competitor and that could challenge its opponents.

The team showed they had learned from their new coach when the season began and that the team will take care of business when needed.

They played hard and did a great job under their new leader who was determined to turn the program around and make SFA one of the top softball teams in the Southland Conference and the state of Texas.

The closeness of the team was seen in winning attitudes and winning games.

Endurance, consistency, dedication, determination and competitive spirit. All these qualities are necessary in a long distance athlete.

Both the Lumberjack and Ladyjack cross country squads were well represented during the 1995-96 track season.

The Lumberjack track team, which is coached by Glen Sefcik, featured Ron McCown, Nacogdoches senior, a decathlete who also competed in long distance competitions. He recorded a 4-minute 45.26-second time at the Olympic Festival in the 1500 meter portion of the men's decathlon, good for first place.

The Ladyjack track team, which is coached by Annie Schweitzer, was also well represented in cross country competitions.

TENNIS

The Ladyjack tennis team is improving year after year to become one of the best tennis teams in the conference.

The team is in its third year after the women's sport was reinstated in 1993. When the team was brought back, Bret Arrant was brought to the program from Nacogdoches High School to get the program on its feet.

The team has done a great job representing SFA and has had several women destroy their competition.

Stephanie Sidney, San Angelo freshman, and Jodie Jablonski, Sugarland freshman, competed throughout the year for the No. 1 and No. 2 spots on the team. They helped the Ladyjacks win several tournaments.

Sidney and Jablonski also led the team in doubles with Audra Smith, Houston freshman, and Suzi Friedman, Conroe freshman, at the heels at the No. 2 spot to bring in some wins for the Ladyjacks.

The team has worked hard, and the progress shows.

Intramurals are an opportunity for every student at the university to participate in sports. The intramurals are set up so any student who would like to play has the chance to do so. Posters are set up through campus to keep everyone aware of the sports that are being offered. Students can choose from three-man basketball, flag football, washers and volleyball. These sports give the students the chance to be part of a sport during college without the pressure of practice and playing every week.

FROM THE EDITOR...

...the time has come. Yet another volume of the timeless legend, the Stone Fort has been put to rest. The book you are holding in your hands right now is not just a collection of miscellaneous photos and words. Consider it a photo album of sorts to help remember good old SFA- four to seven of the best years of your life and something to enjoy twenty years from now. It is a culmination of endless hours, even more endless days, and the blood, sweat and creativity of a special group of people. But that's not to say it wasn't fun, right ladies?

In order to complete such a beast of a task, it takes creativity, intelligence, organization, a sense of humor and an incredible tolerance for sleep deprivation. I am fortunate to have been able to work with some people who exceeded all of these expectations in some form or fashion and without whose efforts the beast could not have been slain.

First and foremost, thanks to Dianne Warren, yearbook advisor and my own personal conscience for a semester. I am grateful for basically everything you did between the months of August and January. My thanks to you goes beyond what any words can express. You were on the ball and ahead of the game the whole way through. You often had completed tasks before I even knew they existed. You stayed firmly on my back (exactly where I needed you) but encouraged me at the same time and were always there to make sure I didn't wind up a curled up mass of indigestion and stress pimples. For all the work you did, it amazes me how you were able to still have birthday cakes ready, give financial advice and offer personal council for the needy (me).

Pat Spence, director of student publications, Princess of The Pine Log, Diva of all things journalistic, my mom away from home and friend. You talked when I needed to listen, listened when I needed to talk and most importantly, knew the difference. You gave me a pat on the rear when I deserved and chewed it thoroughly when I deserved that, too. Most importantly, you helped me keep things in perspective during the most stressful semester of my life.

Cindy Whittle, you undertook a very difficult and tedious part of the project in the scholars section and did it very well, through sickness and in health. Also, you always kept up with the entire plot on Days of Our Lives for everyone.

Jennifer Prnett, you've continued to set the standard for a fine looking Greeks section and, to my utter amazement, managed to stay possibly the most calm and even tempered person in the world.

Julie "Jules" Hobbs, you completed an excellent looking organizations section and put up with some of my ranting and more, shall we say, colorful expressions rather well.

Tina Maldonado, congratulations on a great sports section! With little experience, you tackled (no pun intended) the job with a drive I'm envious of. Also, you were fun to be around, even when it came down to the two of us practically arm wrestling over a picture at deadline when we were still up and working at 7 a.m.

Cara Derbes, you did a fantastic job with the faculty section and tolerated my sense of humor quite well. You are indeed The Woman.

Vicki Smith and Emily Wallwin, you both were ready, willing and able to help out with the grunt work and did so well and without complaint.

Ryan Holohan, Kari Kalinec and Paul Murray, this book would be nothing, or at least much smaller, were it not for your photographic talents. I hope you are as proud as I am.

Thanks to Kirk Draut and David "Tigger" Woodard for going above and beyond the call of duty as photographers. Every time something interesting happened anywhere in the world practically, one of you was there.

Ryan "Hoo Rah" Holt, I might not have been here were it not partially for you and your encouragement. I'll get you back someday. Kidding! Thanks for showing me the ropes so I'd be careful not to get hung up by them!

Derek "Oh Canada, 'oh, it's just an appendix' " Reske, my Canadian brother, I appreciate the encouragement and advice. I even listened to some of it. At the time of this writing you will be married in about 24 hours, which has no real significance here, it will just be fun to read years from now. Also, eternal thanks for, well, you know what. And thank Daisy for showing the utmost consideration by peeing on the linoleum rather than on the carpet.

Thanks to my musician friends: Erik, Preston and Tom of Fish Hook and Kelly, Noel and Mike of Kickstand (among various other band names) for being sympathetic to my rather hectic schedule. We may not be the best musicians in the world, just the coolest!

Thanks also goes out to Ben Carter of Herff Jones, Foley's One Hour Photo, Diamond Photo, Wal-Mart One Hour Photo (you helped more than you could know), Greg Patterson, the back to back world champion Houston Rockets, to Mom and Megan for the wonderful and much needed support and being so understanding about my schedule, roommate Chris for keeping house about like I do, Geddy, Alex and Neil, anyone, anywhere in the industrialized world who makes any kind of caffeinated product and finally thanks to God for the gifts and the life I have.

I suppose the moral of the story is that life moves at a lightning fast pace sometimes, although it may not seem to when one is camped out in the financial aid line. Time won't wait, and it definitely won't stand still for you to stop and appreciate a moment in life. Changes take place, miracles happen and lives are changed, sometimes in the blink of an eye and sometimes without even being noticed by others. The goal of a yearbook, or at least this yearbook, is to help you see some of the things that happened to others or perhaps to remember things you may have experienced during this period of your life. To help freeze the moment or moments, so to speak. And so with a fond farewell, I bid you, the reader, adieu and to the 1996 Stone Fort, good night. It's time for bed.
